

Adjunct Lecturers in Cyber Security

Lancaster University Leipzig, Germany

Lancaster University invites applicants for Adjunct Lecturers in Computer Science to join at its exciting new campus in Leipzig, Germany. Located in one of Germany's most vibrant, liveable, and attractive cities, the Leipzig campus offers the same high academic quality and fully rounded student experience as in the UK, with a strong strategic vision of excellence in teaching, research, and engagement.

Your tasks:

The position is to support the departmental teaching in the upcoming Master programme in Cyber Security. Interested candidates could help the departmental teaching in more than one module. The list of modules is as follows.

MSc Cyber Security:

Introduction to Law, Digital Forensics, and Information System Risk Management

Duties:

- To participate actively in the University's teaching activities in undergraduate and postgraduate Computer Science programmes.
- To individually or collaboratively develop and contribute to taught programmes in the fields of Computer Science.
- Teach undergraduate and/or postgraduate courses delivered by the University, and associated programmes offered by the School, to a very high standard.
- Contribute to programme design and delivery by developing practice-focused content, adopting innovative teaching styles, and designing and delivering effective assessments.

Your profile:

The ideal candidate should have a completed Master's degree (PhD preferred) in Computer Science or similar subject, and demonstrated capabilities in teaching. Candidates should be able to deliver excellent teaching at graduate and undergraduate level. German language skills are not a prerequisite for the role.

Your benefits:

- Pursue a varied and meaningful activity alongside your full-time job
- Exciting opportunity to develop your teaching portfolio
- Access to Lancaster University library and resources, including journal subscriptions
